

This is about Comcast.

1. I am being billed $15.00 extra because I don't want their TV service.
2. They claim that the cost of programing on the TV side is what is driving up prices, yet they are increasing my bill even tho I don't have their TV service.
3. Please separate the two services. TV as an entertainment sector that they can control and the Internet as an educational environment that the FCC controls as a utility and sets a fair price.

In this way Comcast is not robbing "Peter (Internet) to pay Paul (TV) "

Thank you for your time and consideration on this topic